Introduction

Tomás Luis de Victoria was born in Avila, Spain in 1548 and died in Madrid in 1611. His early musical education was in Avila until his voice broke (by 1563/5) when he was sent to the Jesuit Collegio Germanico in Rome to continue his education. His first publication, Motecta (Venice, 1572) included motets for 4–6 and 8 voices, and around this time he may have studied with Palestrina, maestro di cappella at the nearby Seminario Romano. In 1587 Victoria left Italy for Spain where, until 1603, he was appointed Chaplain to the Dowager Empress Maria; he was also maestro de cappilla there until 1604. In 1598 he engaged Julio Junti de Modesti of Madrid to produce 200 copies of a collection which eventually appeared in 1600 as Missae, Magnificat, motecta, psalmi et alia quam plurmia... The present edition is based on the 1600 publication, one which enjoyed considerable distribution, reaching even Mexico and South America.

The four Marian antiphons in this anthology were, initially, all published in Rome. Alma Redemptoris Mater and Ave Regina Coelorum had appeared in 1581; Regina coeli and Salve Regina were first published in 1576. Victoria constantly revised his works for re-publication and each of these antiphons re-appeared in the 1600 Madrid publication which includes revisions of 19 pieces and which also expected a revised performance style. One of the main differences in the 1600 publication from the earlier versions is that Victoria supplies more accidentals in the later version especially in the organ score. Victoria had a particular attachment to Marian antiphons and composed four settings of Salve Regina; the 8-part setting included here enjoyed particularly wide distribution and popularity during his lifetime. He also composed two each of the other three antiphons in this anthology.

The choir at Maria's chapel comprised 12 Priests (3 per part) and 4 boys. Doubling instruments were added for Easter, Corpus Christi and its octave. After 1601 a dulcian (bassoon) was added for all services and the number of boy singers was increased to 6. There is further contemporary evidence (not least from Victoria himself but also from King João IV of Portugal¹) that instrumental doubling was widely practised in his works circulating in Spain; the 1600 publication added an organ part (essentially a reduction of the Choir I material) in open score which he indicated could replace (or, presumably, double) Choir I. (Victoria further suggests that an organ or other instruments might replace Choir II in triple choir settings.) A 1601 letter from Victoria² claimed this practice of replacing a whole choir with an organ to be innovative; it is worth noting that if an organ completely replaces a choir then some of the text would be omitted. At the very least we can note that Victoria presumed an organo seguente part; although this and other doubling practices may have been new in Spain they were common elsewhere in Europe and Victoria himself would presumably have already worked this way in Rome.

¹ In his Defensa de la música moderna of 1649 João IV (who had a close acquaintance with Victoria's compositional output) indicates that it was standard practice for instruments to double or replace vocal lines, particularly the 2nd choir in a triple choir composition.

² The letter from Victoria, dated 10 February 1601, was addressed to Jaén cathedral authorities and claims the precedence for provision of a printed organ score (see S. Rubio, 'Dos interesantes cartas autógrafas de T.L. de Victoria' Revista de musicología, iv (1981), 333–41).

Performance information

Transposition

Many of the motets were published in high clefs and have been transposed here in accordance with our current understanding with regard to how these combinations should be performed.³

Pitch

In the latter part of the sixteenth century various pitches were in regular use. Many organs were tuned a semitone sharp of modern concert pitch (ie $a' = 464$ Hz) and this high pitch, referred to as mezzo punto, was the most common one for wind instruments such as cornett. However, it was not uncommon for organists to transpose down a tone when performing only with singers (or perhaps with string instruments which would be tuned down as necessary); this lower pitch, a semitone below modern concert pitch was called tuono corista. This edition presents the music at the original printed pitch or transposed down a 4th and so avoids remote key signatures. Zarlino, in his Dimostrazioni harmoniche (Venice, 1571), indicates the popularity of quarter- and sixth-comma mean-tone temperament and these certainly work well in Victoria's settings.

Scoring

The psalms are all scored for two or three 4-voice choirs. The tessiture of the individual lines might suggest some adjustment to our modern layout with altos and tenors sharing some of the inner parts; the top line often lies in an alto or mezzo soprano register. Victoria's own rubric and the authoritative writings of João IV (see above) would certainly suggest an organo seguente throughout, with the option of replacing or substituting all or some of the parts with an organ line or another instrument such as cornett, sackbut or bassoon (dulcian).

Pronunciation

It would be reasonable to expect that that part of Victoria's music which he composed and published in Italy would have been sung with an Italianate pronunciation as opposed to the Spanish pronunciation one presumes he anticipated for works composed in Spain (such as his Officium defunctorum... published in Madrid, 1605). The antiphons in the 1600 Madrid publication had all appeared in Italian publications before Victoria returned to Spain. It is unlikely that he was composing for other than the requirements of his current (Roman) employment and publication market. An Italianate pronunciation would therefore seem appropriate.

Editorial Procedure

Variant readings and any problems of clarity in the printed source are included in the Commentary. Clefs are modernised where necessary but original designations are indicated in the prefatory information.

Original time signatures, note values and original key signatures are indicated in the prefatory information or above the stave.

Accidentals have been modernised; redundant accidentals have been omitted.

Editorial suggestions for accidentals based on rules of musica ficta appear above the stave.

Precautionary accidentals appear in round brackets.

Original bar lines at the end of sections have been retained; otherwise, bar lines are editorial.

Rhythmic notation has been standardised and presented with modern beaming.

Spelling and punctuation have been modernised without comment.

Ligatures are indicated by a square bracket above the stave.

Black notation is indicated by a broken bracket above the stave.

Salve Regina

(Ch.1) Hail Queen, Mother of Mercy,
 (Ch.2) Our life, sweetness and our hope.
 (Ch.1) We cry to you, exiled children of Eve,
 (Ch.2) We sigh to you, wailing in this vale of tears.
 (Tutti) Therefore, our advocate, turn your merciful eyes upon us,
 (Ch.1) Show us Jesus, blessed fruit of your womb, after this our exile.
 (Tutti) O loving, O holy, O sweet Virgin Mary.

The musical score consists of eight staves. The top four staves are vocal parts: Soprano 1 (S. 1), Soprano 2 (S. 2), Tenor 1 (T. 1), and Bass 1 (B. 1). The bottom four staves are instrumental or choral parts: Mixed Singers/Alto (M.S./A.), Tenor 2 (T. 2), Alto 3 (T. 3), and Bass 2 (B. 2). The organ part (Org.) is at the bottom. The music is in common time, with a key signature of one sharp. The vocal parts sing the Latin hymn 'Mater misericordiae'. The bass part (B. 1) has a prominent melodic line, particularly in the middle section where it features eighth-note patterns. The organ part provides harmonic support with sustained notes and chords.
