Addition to Acknowledgements

We would also like to thank the rest of the University of York project team for their invaluable contributions at various stages of the work: Diane Dawson (formerly CHE and now at the University of Cambridge) and Russell Mannion (formerly York Management School and now at the University of Birmingham) for essential contributions to the conception of the overall project, without which the project would never have happened, Geoffrey Hardman (who sadly passed away on 29 December 2009) for important contributions to data collection and interpretation, James Carpenter (Yorkshire and Humber Public Health Observatory) for important contributions to data provision and interpretation, Andrew Street (Centre for Health Economics) for helpful advice especially on data sources for independent sector activity, and Rita Santos (Centre for Health Economics) for her excellent work in designing and producing maps for the study on competition.
