

Amelia Inglis

---

University of Illinois, USA

During my time in the USA I definitely became more independent and also more confident. I found myself trying out new things and speaking to new people, which I do not believe I would have done during my first year at York. I also applied for an internship in a courthouse and spent two weeks there, making a great deal of contacts and learning about a completely different jury trial system.

For a student considering studying abroad I would say GO FOR IT but definitely consider every aspect and take your time throughout the process.

