

Early Career Housing Scholars Stream

You are invited to attend the Housing Studies Association Conference 2010

- Are you in the field of housing studies?
- Have you thought about presenting your work to a supportive audience?
- If so, we would like to invite you to present a paper or poster at our annual conference!

The Housing Studies Association is committed to supporting the development of academics and practitioners working in the field of housing studies. We welcome the attendance of PhD students and researchers in the early stages of their careers at our conferences and we are keen to learn more about their work.

This represents a fantastic opportunity to:

- Attend an academic conference
- Show-case your research interests, projects, or findings to a supportive audience
- Gain confidence and experience at presenting your work in an established conference environment
- Network with, and benefit from insights of your peers and more established scholars in the housing studies community

Call for papers now open

We invite contributions covering any aspect of housing studies, including policy and practice. We invite Early Career Researchers to submit an abstract to present a poster, a short paper, or a long paper.

Poster

Posters will be displayed in areas where delegates congregate, with presenters available to discuss and answer questions

Short paper

Presentation (5-10 mins) of research ideas, methods, analysis, literature, theory, where the aim is to discuss emerging issues related to their research in an informal, supportive arena.

Long paper

Presentation (20-25 mins) of substantive aspects of a research project, including findings.

Submission and Attendance Information

Please send a short abstract (200 words) outlining your proposed presentation or poster and giving full contact details for the corresponding author to: Rachael Dobson, Email: r.dobson00@leeds.ac.uk. Closing date for acceptance of abstracts: 31 January 2010

Early career scholars giving papers will be offered a discounted conference rate. You can find more about the Housing Studies Association and the Conference by visiting the website at:
