

JOAN CONCANNON

The University in collaboration with the Biorenewables Development Centre (BDC) successfully won the bid to bring the IB Showcase to the University of York campus. The Showcase was a two-day conference and exhibition hosted by the Knowledge Transfer Network. It was a major event, bringing together around 300 delegates including: industry, researchers, investors and government agencies to showcase how the UK chemistry and industrial biotechnology sectors are helping to enable growth in key UK supply chains through innovation.

The University chose to take up a sponsorship package of £3k. This offered us the opportunity to showcase York's research to senior industry and policy-making leaders to align with the emergence of a new Industrial Strategy as well as a potential new Knowledge Exchange Framework. Specifically the sponsorship deal gave us the opportunity to run a session with three academic speakers, a speech by Pro-Vice-Chancellor for Research, Professor Deborah Smith at the conference dinner, 3 events in the programme (BioVale breakfast meeting, BioVale investor event, BDC tours), a exhibition stand showcasing York's strong offer to industry at the industry exhibition and the inclusion of additional materials in all delegate packs.

The sponsorship was coordinated by the Directorate of External Relations but was split among a number of relevant academic departments and professional support directorates.
