Handlist of Parish Register Transcripts	1
Appendix : Richmond archdeaconry transcripts in the Borthwick Institute	115

INTRODUCTION

The Borthwick Institute has custody of the transcripts for Yorkshire parishes in the diocese of York and certain Yorkshire peculiar jurisdictions. Nottinghamshire transcripts, including those for parishes in the peculiar jurisdiction of the dean and chapter of York, were deposited in Southwell Minster Library from 1936 onwards. Microfilms of these Nottinghamshire transcripts can be consulted in the Nottinghamshire County Record Office, County Hall, High Pavement, Nottingham NG1 1HR. Certain areas of Yorkshire were not in the diocese of York. Transcripts of parishes in the peculiar jurisdictions of Northallertonshire (before 1813) and of Crayke are deposited at the Department of Palaeography and Diplomatic, University of Durham, South Road, Durham. Areas of the old West and North Ridings of the county formed part of the archdeaconry of Richmond which was transferred to the newly-created diocese of Chester in 1541. The transcripts for the Yorkshire portion of this archdeaconry are at the Leeds Archives Department, Sheepscar Branch Library, Chapeltown Road, Leeds LS7 3AP.¹ For isolated Richmondshire transcripts at the Borthwick Institute, see appendix I.

For a discussion of parish register transcripts and the various injunctions regarding the compilation and return of these documents, readers are advised to consult D.J. Steel, A.E.F. Steel and others, National Index of Parish Registers vol. I, Sources of Births, Marriages and Deaths before 1837 (I), (Society of Genealogists, 1968), 167-82, and W.E. Tate, The Parish Chest (3rd ed., Cambridge, 1969), 50-53. Although in most dioceses, these parish register transcripts were apparently handed in at visitations, it has become clear that at York many of the transcripts were sent direct to the diocesan registrar.²

The great majority of the York series survives from the early 17th century and continues, with gaps in the sequence, to the 19th century. They decrease in number after the beginning of civil registration in 1837 and often marriage entries are omitted in later transcripts.

The present handlist represents the considerable work undertaken by the late Mrs Norah Gurney, Director of the Institute, in sorting the transcripts into parish order from virtually unusable annual bundles and in listing them. The transcripts are physically arranged by the ancient rural deaneries and peculiar jurisdictions, even though these areas have undergone re-constitution in modern times. Through the ready co-operation and kindness of the Society of Genealogists who gave permission to cite from their valuable publications, Parish Register Copies, part one: Society of Genealogists Collection (3rd ed., 1970) and Parish Register Copies, part two: Other than the Society of Genealogists Collection (rev.1974), a note has been made in the handlist where printed editions or modern manuscript copies of transcripts or the original parish registers survive. Only manuscript copies or microfilms of copies in British libraries and other institutions have been noted. It will be appreciated that covering dates only are given and it may be possible that there are not always baptismal, marriage and burial entries for all the years noted. There may also be lacunae in the modern copies. Prospective readers are therefore strongly advised to check with the librarians of the respective institutions to ascertain more precise details before venturing to consult these copies.

2. For instance, the endorsement of the Roos transcript for 1710 reads: 'For Mr Register to the Ld A.Bp of Yorke at his Office in the Minster-Yard, or elsewhere. To be left with Mr Cox at the Naggs-Head in Hull, who is desir'd to deliver it as directed with care and speed.'

The parish register transcripts at the Borthwick Institute are available for consultation by members of the public and a leaflet on the Institute's facilities, times of opening etc. can be supplied. As the searchroom accommodation is strictly limited, appointments are necessary. The Institute staff cannot undertake searches but a list of professional record searchers can be provided, if a personal visit is not practicable. It is regretted that photographic reproduction of the transcripts is not possible.

Grateful thanks are due to many libraries, archive offices and other institutions for information and assistance, especially the Society of Genealogists, the Yorkshire Archaeological Society, York City Library, Humberside County Record Office and North Yorkshire County Record Office. The handlist has been seen through the press by various members of the Institute staff, but special mention must be made of the work done by Miss Jane Kimber after Mrs Gurney's untimely death in 1974.
