

RSC Centenary Prize

Professor Yoshinori Yamamoto

Lecture Tour 12 - 16 October 2009

York, Belfast and Durham

Professor Yoshinori Yamamoto from Tohoku University, Japan, will be delivering a lecture at a number of locations in the UK throughout October 2009. He was awarded the RSC Centenary Prize for his innovative contributions to methodology in organic synthesis.

Professor Yamamoto's lecture will be entitled:

From sigma- to pi-Electrophilic Lewis Acids. Application to Selective Organic Transformations

Lecture Dates and Venues

12 October 2009 – York

Organised by the Department of Chemistry at the University of York.

16 October 2009 – Durham

Organised by Teeside Local Section

14 October 2009 – Belfast

Organised by Northern Ireland Local Section and Queen's University Belfast. This will form part of a half day symposium and will also feature Professors David Leigh and Jim Thomas.

For further details of each lecture please visit www.rsc.org/yamamoto

This award has been recently renamed the RSC Centenary Prize and is awarded to outstanding chemists from overseas to give lectures in the British Isles.