Welcome to our 2016/2017 concert season!

As always, we have a great choice of music from the opening concert of chamber music given by the Benyounes Quartet with clarinettist Julian Bliss – five versatile musicians with ever-growing reputations – to the final concert, given in York Minster by the University Choir and Symphony Orchestra and, to wrap up the year, a showcase of some of the best of the year’s student performances.

The old and the new are heard and seen in a variety of ways, not only in music but also in technology with new sounds created by old methods. The Langham Research Centre recaptures the spirit of the BBC’s Radiophonic Workshop in Ritual in Transfigured Space (26 October) and Spiritus Telecommunitas (27 January) records archive material on wax cylinders and plays them on old gramophones.

In a less ‘high-tech’ acoustic vein, Peter Hill (8 February) plays Bach on a grand piano.

We welcome back I Fagiolini (22 February) for a celebration of the creative genius of Monteverdi and pianist Clare Hammond (3 February) who plays music spanning four centuries. Roderick Williams and Kitty Whately give us a day of fantastic song – settings of Shakespeare, old and new (18 February). Our own choirs and ensembles contribute a huge breadth of repertoire, all delivered with commitment and outstanding performances.

Do keep an eye on our website for updates. From there you can join our e-mailing list to receive useful reminders of what’s coming up as well as details of special events and offers.

We are delighted to welcome five exciting young British musicians to launch our 2016/17 season. They have many major awards to their names and are active not just in the classical sphere but also, in the case of the Quartet, with dance, and jazz plays a large part in Julian’s career. As well as the great quintet by Brahms, they play Glazunov’s dreamy evocation of the Russian eastern territories. The quartet by Debussy also has echoes of the exotic and sensual.

Reflection of Silence

Reflection of Silence is a collaboration between musicians who share a passion and talent for improvising and creatively interpreting Iranian and Kurdish music. They open the evening with the Art of Improvisation in Iranian music, before taking a contemporary approach to a set of ancient pieces from different parts of the Kurdistan region. A beautifully absorbing performance that builds and intensifies, stirring both performers and listeners to become ecstatically lost in the music.

Ritual in Transfigured Time

Goldfield Ensemble
Langham Research Centre
Rob Goodman  sound design

Inspired by Maya Deren’s beautiful silent film, Ritual in Transfigured Time, this acoustic, electronic and cinematic exploration of the ‘newness’ of the old takes sounds and images from the 1940s, technologies developed in the 1950s, and the unique sounds of salvaged objects that, heard alongside string quartet and clarinet, create a glorious kaleidoscope. The programme includes works by Varèse, Tristan Murail, Jonathan Harvey, Arlene Sierra, Kathy Hinde and the Langham Research Centre.

Tipping Point

James Mainwaring  saxophone
Matthew Bourne  Fender Rhodes piano
Michael Bardon  double bass
Joost Hendrickx  drums

Tipping Point is the new project of saxophonist, composer and singer-songwriter James Mainwaring, founder member of the Mercury Prize-nominated Roller Trio. The quartet also features British improvised music legend Matthew Bourne and two of the UK’s most individual instrumentalists. Mainwaring’s compositions for Tipping Point evoke playfulness, mindfulness, darkness and extremes of emotion as the band journeys from reflective ambience to intense aggression, improvisations, angular melodies and unorthodox sounds from eerie to comic.

A Portrait of the Artist

York Music Theatre Group

2016 marks the centenary of the publication of Irish author James Joyce’s novel ‘A Portrait of the Artist as a Young Man’. This musical and theatrical spectacle, created as the year’s Department Practical Project, celebrates Joyce’s life and work through texts and songs from his works. It also reflects the political tensions of the period, for 2016 is the centenary of the Easter Rising. Joyce’s characters sing ‘Love’s Old Sweet Song’ and ‘My Girl’s a Yorkshire Girl’, but also nationalist songs like ‘The Croppy Boy’ and ‘A Nation Once Again’.

Tantrums; sulking; sweetness; play; sleep. Contrasting extremes of the undeveloped child psyche have inspired varying degrees of agitation and stillness in this programme of music for piano and toy piano. Aspects of time, touch, sound, restraint and physicality are explored – themes that informed the collaborative process between Kate and Morag when creating their new piece for piano and toy piano.
The 24

Robert Hollingworth director

JS Bach Lutheran Mass in F, BWV 233
Handel Coronation Anthems

Two great and joyful choral works feature in The 24's first concert with chamber orchestra accompaniment. In Bach's Lutheran Mass, a pair of horns on the chorale tune soars over the choir before launching into a virtuosic romp of joy, reminiscent of a stag hunt, before finally leaving shepherds and angels ecstatically exhausted. Written for George II's coronation in Westminster Abbey in 1727, Handel's Coronation Anthems are a choral concerto with strings, oboes, trumpets and drums, and include 'Zadok the Priest'.

Unsuk Chin Cantatrix Sopranica
Julianna Hodkinson Some Reasons for Hesitating
Yair Klartag Nothing to Express
Gerard Pesson Le Gel Par Jeu

Unsuk Chin's witty yet masterful 'exploration in the act of singing' Cantatrix Sopranica opens Chimera's 2016/17 season. The programme also features Yair Klartag's thrilling Nothing to Express for electric guitar and string quartet; Gerard Pesson's spirited danse macabre Le Gel Par Jeu which balances uneasiness with a certain buoyancy; and Julianna Hodkinson gives the players an opportunity to engage the space left by the absence of a score. Also featured will be a new work by the winner of the Chimera undergraduate commission.

Lili Boulanger D’un soir triste

Elgar Enigma Variations

Evocative colours and vivid orchestration flavour this programme, opening with Lili Boulanger’s final major work, a striking tone poem filled with subtleties and dark climaxes. Seldom performed, Bartók’s orchestral pieces are strongly contrasting and epic in quality considering the short duration of each piece. Elgar’s Enigma Variations – correctly, Variations on an Original Theme ‘Enigma’ – needs no introduction!

English 20th Century Classics

Britten  Rejoice in the Lamb
Bairstow  Blessed City, Heav’nly Salem
Finzi  Lo, The Full Final Sacrifice
Lennox Berkeley  A Festival Anthem
Kenneth Leighton  Crucifixus Pro Nobis

These five pieces of outstanding English choral music are all distinguished by their image-rich texts. The settings of metaphysical poetry by Finzi, Britten and Leighton, wonderfully imaginative pieces, were commissioned for St Matthew’s Church, Northampton, Chichester Cathedral and New College, Oxford. Berkeley’s undeservedly neglected A Festival Anthem and the incandescent fervour of Bairstow’s Blessed City, heav’nly Salem complete the programme.

Kosmos re-defines the relationship between classical and world music. Gypsy, Scottish, Jewish and Greek music glide into hot-blooded tango and Japanese melody, referencing classical composers including Brahms, Dvorak and Sarasate, performed with ‘telepathic rapport, dazzling virtuosity, serious scholarship, intellectual curiosity and impeccable musicianship’ (The Times).

A pianist of ‘amazing power and panache’ (Daily Telegraph), Clare Hammond features two film shorts as a backdrop to music from the 17th to 20th centuries. Kenneth Hesketh’s score, specially written for Clare, accompanies the expressionist film Hände; while Ed Hughes’s The Nose is a new score to a short film inspired by Nikolai Gogol’s dream-like story of a government official whose nose goes missing. Clare was recipient of the Royal Philharmonic Society’s Young Artists Award in recognition of her achievements in 2015, including three award-winning CDs.
Peter Hill piano

JS Bach Goldberg Variations BWV988

Originally conceived for a two-manual harpsichord, Bach’s virtuoso tour de force is heard in this recital on the piano. Peter Hill is known for his 20th-century and contemporary discography but his recent Bach recordings – of the French Suites and The Well-Tempered Clavier – have also received outstanding critical acclaim: ‘a wonderfully natural unfolding of these pieces, in which Hill is never ashamed to make full use of the tonal resources of the modern piano. The crystalline quality of his quiet playing is a regular pleasure’ (Guardian).

Blake In Praise of Krishna

Haydn Symphony no. 94 in G (‘The Surprise’)

Blake’s powerful setting of poetry from the Vaishnava sect tells the love story of Krishna and Radha. He writes that he responded to the ‘extremely powerful sensuality of these poems, the beautiful language and imagery’ devising ‘a sequence which takes the form of a short drama, all expressed in the first person by the beautiful cow-herd girl, Radha’. Strauss’s glorious Oboe Concerto, an outpouring of melodic and sumptuous harmony, is played by finalist Angelika-Rose Stangl. Haydn’s effervescent symphony concludes this celebratory concert.
A Concord of Sweet Sounds
Shakespeare in Song
Saturday 18 February
National Centre for Early Music

The Song Day focuses on settings of the great bard’s verse, albeit after 2016’s significant anniversaries but it is never too late to celebrate the words that have inspired so much great music. Originally the settings were heard in the context of the plays for which they were written but gradually moved outside the theatre so that by the late 19th and 20th centuries many composers – especially British ones – were inspired to set Shakespeare’s texts. These include Stanford, Sullivan, Vaughan Williams, Coates, Quilter, Finzi, Bridge, Maconchy, Dring – a veritable stellar group of composers for the voice!

Roderick Williams needs no introduction to audiences both in York and further afield and we are delighted to welcome him back for song recitals, a genre in which he is one of the world’s pre-eminent performers. A winner of the Kathleen Ferrier Award and now a BBC Radio 3 New Generation Artist, Kitty Whately is a passionate interpreter of song and has given many recitals including at the Wigmore Hall, the Edinburgh Festival and the Oxford and Leeds Lieder Festivals.

I Fagiolini

Robert Hollingworth  director

Monteverdi: Flaming Heart

L’Orfeo Act II
Madrigals from Book IV
Hor che'l ciel e la terra
Chiome d’oro
Zefiro torna
Ballo - Tirsi e Clori

Monteverdi specialists I Fagiolini mark the 450th anniversary of his birth with this ravishing selection of his music. They bring to life music from his early days in Mantua – passionate madrigals that gave birth to L’Orfeo, with a staged performance of the opera’s powerful messenger scene – and, from Venice, rarely-performed dance music, erotic miniatures and finally a firework from the famous collection Madrigals of War and Love. The seven singers are joined by an instrumental ensemble for this celebration of Monteverdi’s expressive genius.

‘To feel the physicality of the music – the lacerating dissonances and the consoling resolutions – with such immediacy made this an unforgetable experience.’ Guardian
This much-quoted and much misunderstood phrase about the English style of singing ('The English make a joyful noise') in the 15th and 16th centuries is the starting point to look at the fabulous pre-Reformation style of Tallis and Taverner – composers whose music mirrors the architectural span of the magnificent buildings for which it was written. A mere 400 years later, the same cathedrals and music inspired Bax, Howells and Vaughan-Williams to write some of their most demanding pieces for choir, including Howells’ setting of a poem by Alcuin of York.

(See also 31 May)

As we enter the coldest time of the year Chimera offers an equally icy programme. Winter Fragments combines glittering electronics with a large ensemble to create a haunting and niveous experience. The fresh and complex Antara seems to beckon the spring and banish the cold brought in by the Murail. Both are contrasted by the grinding and grating Conscious Sound by Panayiotis Kokoras and the at times fragile, at times ferocious Microludes by György Kurtág. The programme will also feature new works by student composers.

King Arthur

University Chamber Choir & Baroque Ensemble
Peter Seymour conductor

Purcell’s 1691 semi-opera King Arthur contains some of his best-known and spectacular music with a colourful orchestra of oboes, recorders, trumpets and strings. The original stage play by Dryden inspired Purcell to write truly memorable music, including the well-known Frost Scene with its shivering players and singers, and the song ‘Fairest isle’, one of his most popular solo numbers. In this performance the musical items are linked by a narration specially commissioned from Andrew Pinnock.

James MacMillan The Berserking
Tchaikovsky Symphony no. 5 in E minor op. 64

‘Magnificent, original, inventive, compelling, powerful and overwhelming’ is how Simon Heffer described The Berserking in the Daily Telegraph. The title refers to the legendary Norse warriors who would storm into battle with an uncontrollable fury that is reflected in this work, in essence a piano concerto, in which the relationship between soloist (here, finalist Anson Ng) and orchestra changes in each of its three sections. Tchaikovsky’s ever-popular symphony takes the listener on a journey from the dark colours of its opening to a radiant, triumphal conclusion.

Rachmaninov  Vespers op. 37 (All-Night Vigil)
Bruckner  Mass in E minor

The All-Night Vigil is an unaccompanied setting of texts taken from the Russian Orthodox service of Vespers. Written as Russia was on the brink of revolution, Rachmaninov used ancient chants and folk song techniques to create this moving and reflective work, one of his finest. In Bruckner’s Mass the choir is accompanied by wind band and, like the Vespers, the music looks back to that of an earlier age, this time to Palestrina. Both works will complement the generous acoustic and magnificent setting of the Minster.

Ben Horden  organ

Reger  Introduction and Passacaglia

‘O Traurigkeit, o Herzelied’
Mendelssohn  Prelude and Fugue no.1 in C minor
Bach  Chorale Partita ‘Sei gegrüsset, Jesu gütig’
Liszt  Fantasia and Fugue on the name BACH

Of the many organ genres of the 18th century, the Chorale Partita is perhaps the least familiar; this concert gives an opportunity to hear one of Bach’s finest offerings and to spot his influence on later composers. The concert hall’s neo-classical organ built by Grant, Degens and Bradbeer would have been recognized by Bach and also by Mendelssohn, Liszt, Brahms and even Reger. Former Organ Scholar at York Minster, Ben Horden is now Assistant Director of Music at St Bartholomew’s Church in London, and a busy recitalist and choral director.

The use of music to tell stories and to express emotions was a popular concept in the 17th and 18th centuries, although the term 'programme music' was not in use for a further century. This day of three concerts includes famous examples of musical storytelling and also contrasts Laments written for instruments alone with those for accompanied voice.

Two laments are complemented by two pieces that use mimicry: Farina imitates trumpers, shawms, organs and guitars with string instruments; in the Gulliver Suite, Telemann mimics characters from Swift’s novel.

Beethoven  Sonata no. 4 in A minor op. 23
Prokofiev  Sonata no. 1 in F minor op. 80
Brahms  Sonata no. 3 in D minor op. 108

There is a sharp contrast between the relatively early sonata by Beethoven and the work by Prokofiev. Written after Prokofiev returned to Russia in 1938 his sonata was written in the shadow of the Great Terror and is understandably one of his darkest works. Brahms's sonata radiates drama and lyricism, building to an exciting, virtuosic finale. Both performers enjoy international reputations as soloists and chamber musicians and as pedagogues.

Fauré Requiem op.48
Fauré Cantique de Jean Racine op.11
Duruflé Four Motets on Gregorian Themes op.10

Fauré’s popular Requiem, heard here in its original chamber version with small orchestra, is performed with his Cantique de Jean Racine, written when the composer was just 19 but full of the expansive lyricism that suffuses the Requiem. Duruflé’s motets enjoy regular appearances in the choral repertoire and their amiable style completes this survey of intimate French choral repertoire.

The Chimera Ensemble

Carlos D. Perales Soleá
Matthias Pintscher Choc
Theo Verbey Inversie

Theo Verbey’s Inversie, a light and springy work with exciting rhythmic passages, is the exact opposite in character to Perales’ brooding and dynamic Solea with its angular gestures creating a feeling of high tension throughout. Choc by Matthias Pintscher is a complex and focused work that seems to hold an entire universe of sound and presage the end of the world itself. The programme also includes new works by student composers.

Walton Crown Imperial
Walton Belshazzar’s Feast

Berlioz’s Grande symphonie funèbre et triomphale opens with a sombre funeral march and ends with a triumphal choral finale. Belshazzar’s Feast became an immediate success: a music drama with unaccompanied recitatives and colourful and dramatic writing for choir and large orchestra. Soloist Benedict Nelson is one of the most exciting baritones of his generation, equally at home on the concert platform and opera stage. Written for the coronation of Edward VIII, the march Crown Imperial was first performed at the coronation of King George VI.

Grand Showcase

We end the season with a great opportunity to hear a selection of the year’s outstanding student performances, both vocal and instrumental. Come and hear some of the talent that makes the music department at York so distinctive!
