

Free public lecture - 12 October 2016, 6.30pm

Convergence and conversion:

The Goddess Mazu and the Virgin Mary in global maritime history

Professor Ronnie Hsia, Penn State University

The Department of History is delighted to be hosting a guest lecture from Ronnie Hsia (Penn State University, USA).

Professor Hsia will explore perils at sea, and how and why seafarers prayed to two female figures who represented saviours in the oceans of the early modern world.

Find out more: www.york.ac.uk/history

Location:

Berrick Saul Building
(Bowland Auditorium),
University of York,
Heslington,
York YO10 5DD

University parking is free after 6pm

This event is supported by the Distinguished Visitors'
Fund, the Department of History, and CREMS.

CREMS CENTRE FOR RENAISSANCE
& EARLY MODERN STUDIES