The Charles Feinstein Public Lecture

Globalization, De-Industrialization and Divergence in the Third World

BY

JEFFREY G. WILLIAMSON
(Harvard University)

Friday, 9 March, 3:30pm, L/036

Professor Jeffrey Williamson is an expert on globalization and World Economic History, and he is currently the Laird Bell Professor of Economics at Harvard University. Professor Williamson was the Head (Chairman) of the Economics Department from 1997 to 2000. He is a Research Associate at the National Bureau of Economic Research (NBER), and a Research Fellow for the Centre for Economic Policy Research (CEPR). He has been awarded twice the Galbraith Prize for the best teacher in Harvard's graduate economics program.

Sponsored by the Department of Economics (DERS) and CHERRY (the Centre for Historical Economics and Related Research at York)