

THE 1ST ANNUAL STUDENT ARCHAEOLOGY CONFERENCE

Developing Integrated Archaeology

CALL FOR PAPERS

The 1st ASA conference presents a forum for discussion amongst undergraduate students unlike those seen before. Within the academic community each and every one of us has a different view; it is the aim of this undergraduate-focused conference to explore many new ways we can understand the past from different viewpoints.

This year's Annual Student Archaeology Conference, held at the University of York, is calling on all undergraduate students, including archaeology, history, science, linguistics and psychology, to come together on the 19th - 20th June and discuss the ways in which we can understand the past, drawing from personal research and independent study. With space for over 20 speakers, 10 posters and 100 delegates, this 1st ASA conference stands to be the largest undergraduate gathering of its kind.

We are calling for abstracts of up to 500 words from anyone interested in presenting papers on new work and research in a variety of topics including, but by no means limited to:

- Theory of the past
- Applying science to the study of the past
- Fieldwork in archaeology
- Engaging people with the past

This year's conference will be taking place at the University of York in The King's Manor (Department of Archaeology), located near the city centre.

Regardless of discipline, if you have an interest in the past,
then the ASA Conference is for you

To present a paper:

Email contact.asaconference@gmail.com with a 500 word abstract or any questions you have about presenting at the ASA conference

To present a poster:

Email contact.asaconference@gmail.com with a plan of what the poster will contain, the poster itself or any questions about what presenting a poster consists of.

To be an ordinary delegate:

To obtain tickets visit our website at www.asaconference.weebly.com

Or if you would like to get involved with the organisation of ASA conferences, either this year or in the future, email contact.asaconference@gmail.com

FURTHER INFORMATION

The ASA conferences are closely linked with the student-run archaeology journal, The Post Hole. Contributors to ASA conferences have the opportunity for their work to be published in the journal.

Attendance to the conference costs £15 which includes a number of accommodation spaces for those from outside of York, teas and coffees for the two days, as well as a wine reception held on the first evening.

This conference presents an ideal opportunity for undergraduates to engage academically with peers from a number of disciplines who share an interest in the past. Delegates will have the chance to engage in rigorous academic discourse, socialise with like-minded individuals, and enjoy much that the great historic city of York has to offer, even including a free historical tour.
