Tutor response:

I am delighted to see such positive feedback from students on this module, especially as this is the first time that the module has been offered. I am particularly grateful for the positive comments about my teaching and support for students. The research component is a key part of this module, so it was also great to hear from one student that they particularly appreciated the opportunity to carry out their own piece of research into dialect variation using the survey method. There were no constructive criticisms to address.

I look forward to teaching this module again in 2023-24! Thank you all for the comments – they are very much appreciated.
