Update from the Dean

The schools in York have now broken up, so lots of my colleagues and some PGRs are now taking annual leave. Campus feels fairly quiet apart from summer schools and, of course, graduation week starts tomorrow. Congratulations to all PGRs who will be walking across the stage to receive their certificate and warm words from Heather, Charlie or Ken!

In other news, the University has announced its decision to move out of King's Manor by the end of the 2024/25 academic year. The reasons are to do with the substantial running costs, conservation costs and accessibility concerns. I have passed on concerns about the move from PGRs and the GSA to colleagues in the Arts & Humanities Faculty and on the University Executive Board. They emphasise that the A&H community - including PGRs - will be consulted prior to making decisions around where and when PGRs will be moved. Also, there is a strong feeling that the Humanities Research Centre community will be retained, and indeed enhanced, throughout these changes. Please get in touch with YGRS directly if you have any further questions or concerns: ygrs@york.ac.uk.

We have an update on University finances and news of staff who are leaving York will be shared across departments over the next weeks and months. We know that a large number of professional support staff will be departing so some of the services and support provided to PGRs might be delivered differently. Please be patient and direct queries to team email accounts rather than personal email addresses. YGRS will be working with departments to help manage any changes to PGR supervision and training. Guidance will be going out to Grad Chairs and Heads of Departments soon but many departments are being proactive in their planning. More info and FAQs on changes and their impacts will be posted on the website soon.

Finally, there are still pots of funding available to PGRs, despite the cuts. There is scope for PGRs to suggest research culture workshop topics for next semester. Also, self funded PGRs can apply for our YGRS Conference Fund to attend UK and international conferences.

Enjoy your summer (when it comes....)

Best wishes,
Kate

YGRS and University news
We want to extend a huge welcome to all our new PGR students! Can you help?
The York PGR Buddy Scheme provides peer support for new PGRs. It makes a huge difference to receive advice from someone who's been there before. Feedback on the Buddy Scheme has been overwhelmingly positive from both volunteers and new PGRs - so if you want to get involved, please fill out the application form by 27 September.

Summer graduation
We're looking forward to our summer graduation ceremonies. Find out all you need to know about graduation on the website.

Update on University finances
UK funding for higher education continues to be very challenging and, like many other universities, we continue to face increasing costs. We have updated staff on the University’s latest financial forecast and next steps. Find out more information on what this means for staff and students.

King’s Manor
We have confirmed plans to move out of King’s Manor in the centre of York, bringing Archaeology, Centre for Medieval Studies and Centre for Eighteenth-Century Studies to our main University campus.

Changes to booking annual leave
Annual leave requests will soon be changing from e:Vision to Flexileave. Find out more about booking annual leave.

Latte levy increase
Starting 5 August, our latte levy charge at all Eat and Drink outlets across campus will increase to 35p to reduce the usage of single-use plastic takeaway cups. You can avoid the latte levy by bringing your own cup, using our crockery and drinking in, or purchasing and using a YORCUP. Find out more about the latte levy and how the money is ring-fenced.

First York bus ticket changes
First York have made changes to bus ticket offerings and some fares.

Support and wellbeing

Funding to attend conferences
Self-funded PGRs can apply for funding to attend UK and international conferences when other funding options have been exhausted. The next application deadline for the YGRS Conference Fund is 1 September.

Get involved with the EDI Support Hub
We are looking for staff and students from a variety of backgrounds to help develop an EDI Support Hub and share their experiences and celebrate the diversity within our BAME population.

Researcher development

Suggest a topic for a research culture workshop
The Enhancing Research Culture workshops highlight different aspects of research culture and showcase examples of best practice both within and outside the University. Suggest research culture workshop topics for next semester.

News from the Students’ Unions

Your new Students’ Union
From Thursday 1 August, GSA and YUSU will be merging to form the University of York Students’ Union - or York SU for short. Although there's lots of change happening, the Union still exists to support you. There are still Advice and Support services, with staff available to offer postgraduate-specific support and representation, and they will continue to put on events and offer societies, socials and trips for postgraduate students.
