Jenny Simpson, University of Northampton
9th October 2019
1.15pm (registration from 1.00) to 4.30pm
York Pavilion Hotel, YO10 4PJ

Do you work with vulnerable children and young people, those in care or at risk? Are you concerned about their use of technology and social media? Do you feel unsure about your response to this whole area? You are not alone! Join us for the latest research, debate, discussion and implications for practice.

Jenny Simpson will draw on a study involving young people in care and their use of mobile devices and the Internet. She will explore the debate about the use of mobile technology and how social work practitioners do and can respond. This event is designed to enable practitioners to think critically about their practice, as well as promoting the welfare of children and young people.

For subscribing organisations this is a Children’s Services event. For others there is a fee of £95.

Bursaries are available for students, staff and service users, as well as for volunteers from voluntary groups, community groups and charities; please ask for details:
