POSTGRADUATE PROGRAMME SPECIFICATION

The Mundus Master of Arts in Public Policy

SUMMARY

The Mundus Master Programme in Public Policy (Mundus MAPP) provides scholarly education and practical training for future academic and policy leaders in the public, private and non-profit sectors. It provides a detailed and systematic understanding of how political institutions, processes and public policies operate and interact from the global political economy through to national and local levels with a direct focus on European engagements at these levels of governance.

Multi- and inter-disciplinarity and practical application of conceptual knowledge through internships are hallmarks of Mundus MAPP. Building on Mundus MAPP's successful track record, the new curriculum provides a uniform core of policy studies to students, regardless of mobility track, in Policy Analysis, Economics for Public Policy, Global Governance, Public Management and Research Methods, as well as track-specific modules drawn predominantly from the fields of International Relations, European Studies and Development Studies. The four mobility tracks allow students to specialise in Political Economy and Development, Governance and Development, and European and Global Public Policy, respectively. Each mobility track includes a joint spring school/study visit for all students, and an internship.

Mundus MAPP directly responds to the educational needs created by the rapidly changing global environment and new public policy challenges at the intersection of the local, the national, the regional and the global levels. Mundus MAPP equips graduates with the conceptual knowledge and hard skills that are necessary for understanding and decisively intervening in contemporary transnational policy problems, from climate change to international terrorism or financial regulatory failure.

Mundus MAPP's unique combination of strong conceptual foundations with practice and policy-oriented learning will provide graduates with all necessary transferable skills and subject-specific knowledge for embarking on or furthering professional careers as policy-makers, policy-analysts and advisors in either politics, the civil service, international organisations or the corporate and non-governmental sectors, and for enrolling in doctoral programmes in a range of relevant subjects. They will have unsurpassed knowledge of European policy making milieus, and solid institutional and personal networks that will take them forward to leadership roles and constructive future engagements within Europe and the rest of the world.

Admissions criteria and selection process

Admissions Criteria:

Mundus MAPP is open to both European and overseas (third country national) students.

Minimum requirements are:

Bachelors degree

Completed at least three years of undergraduate study - normally at least Second Class - in a cognate discipline such as international relations, political science, sociology, social sciences, public administration and public policy, economics or development.

Fluency in English

Mundus MAPP does not require a language certificate from applicants from the following countries, provided that they have received a Bachelors or Masters degree taught exclusively in English: Australia, Botswana, Canada, Gambia, Ghana, Ireland, Kenya, Liberia, Malawi, Namibia, New Zealand, Nigeria, Philippines, Rwanda (English-speaking region), South Africa, Tanzania, Uganda, UK, USA and Zambia. Applicants from countries other than these may request a waiver from the English language admissions requirement if they hold a Bachelor's or Master's degree taught exclusively in English from a university or college in Australia, Canada, New Zealand, USA, the European Union, Iceland, Liechtenstein, Norway or Switzerland.

All other applicants will need to provide evidence of their English language skills with any one of the following test scores: TOEFL (Computer-based; taken on/after Feb 11, 2010) 237 or above; OR TOEFL (Paper version; taken on/after Feb 11, 2010) 580 or above; OR TOEFL (Internet version; taken on/after Feb 11, 2010) 92 or above; OR International English Language Test (IELTS; taken on/after Feb 11, 2010) 6.5 or above; OR Cambridge Proficiency Examination (taken on/after Feb 11, 2007) C or above; OR Cambridge Advanced English Test (taken on/after Feb 11, 2007) B or above.

Selection Process:

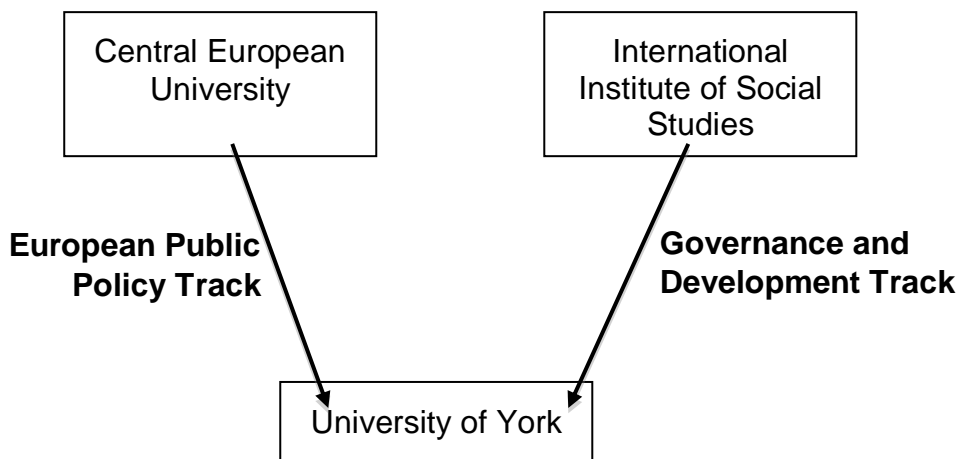

The Mundus MAPP application process is administered by CEU (the coordinating institution). Candidates submit all application materials online together with an electronic application form. Applications are first screened by CEU's Admissions Office on eligibility grounds (rejecting incomplete applications and applications with English language test scores below the required level). A second screening by CEU's School of Public Policy checks the content of applications to filter out extremely weak applications or applications that misrepresent relevant information. The remaining applications are uploaded onto an online work platform and jointly evaluated by consortium partner institutions. Each application is evaluated and scored by at least two members of faculty (one from each of the institutions candidates indicate a preference for). The evaluation criteria are academic background (relevance and quality of previous degrees); relevant work experience (including research experience and internships); motivation and leadership potential assessed on the basis of statements of purpose; and letters of recommendation from at least two persons (academic and professional) familiar with the candidate.

The evaluation criteria and their weighting are approved by the Mundus MAPP Academic Board each year for the following round of admissions. The admissions process is concluded by a Board meeting, when academic and administrative staff from all four consortium institutions meet and go through the final joint merit list compiled on the basis of submitted scores. On this occasion the files of the leading applicants are again individually, qualitatively assessed and discussed by all board members present. This is the occasion when equity issues, if any, are also addressed.

Detailed information on the selection process can be found here: <http://www.mundusmapp.org/prospective-students/admissions-requirements>

Educational aims of the programme(s)

The Mundus Master Programme in Public Policy (Mundus MAPP) provides scholarly education and practical training for future academic and policy leaders in the public, private and non-profit sectors. It provides a detailed and systematic understanding of how political institutions, processes and public policies operate and interact from the global political economy through to national and local levels with a direct focus on European engagements at these levels of governance.

Mundus MAPP directly responds to the educational needs created by the rapidly changing global environment and new public policy challenges at the intersection of the local, the national, the regional and the global levels. Mundus MAPP equips graduates with the conceptual knowledge and hard skills that are necessary for understanding and decisively intervening in contemporary transnational policy problems, from climate change to international terrorism or financial regulatory failure.

The students' mobility is instrumental to the programme objectives. Mobility pathways or tracks (the particular combinations of institutions) are designed to fully utilise complementarities among consortium institutions and at the same time put the consortium institutions' respective strengths and distinctiveness at the students' disposal. The ability to "mix and match" first and second year institutions (the mobility component) thus allows students to build up a specialisation within Mundus MAPP that is most suited to their individual career objectives.

Intended learning outcomes for the programme – and how the programme enables students to achieve and demonstrate the intended learning outcomes

This programme provides opportunities for students to develop and demonstrate knowledge and understanding qualities, skills and other attributes in the following areas:	The following teaching, learning and assessment methods enable students to achieve and to demonstrate the programme learning outcomes:

Award regulations

To be eligible for the award of the Mundus Masters in Public Policy, awarded jointly by ISS and UoY OR jointly by CEU and UoY a student must undertake the approved programme of study as detailed in the Programme Specification, and obtain at least 120 ECTS at Masters level (at least 60 ECTS in year 1 at ISS or CEU and 60 ECTS in year 2 at UoY).

Policies on assessment and feedbackOverarching consortium policies on assessment and feedback:

The jointly taught and examined programme components are jointly assessed. For all other components the form of assessment and feedback is determined by the institution that offers the module.

Year One, CEU (European Public Policy Track):

Relevant procedures are described in CEU's "Student rights, rules and academic regulations". Course specific assessment rules are available in the course syllabi.

Year One, ISS (Governance and Development Track):

Detailed information on assessment per course is available in the ISS Academic Calendar, information on the grade descriptors and marking procedures can be found in the Student Charter of the Academic Calendar: <http://moodle.iss.nl/course/view.php?id=637>

Year Two, York (all students):

Detailed information on assessment (including grade descriptors, marking procedures, word counts etc.) is available in student handbooks, on the VLE and on the current students section of the Politics webpages.

Diagrammatic representation of the programme structure, showing the distribution and credit value of core and option modules

The programme consists of four basic elements (NB all courses/modules are at masters level):

1) The taught courses/modules are divided into three distinct categories:

- General core courses/modules are mandatory for all students and fully harmonised across the two academic years and four consortium institutions. All Mundus MAPP graduates will have taken these subjects, considered as the core theoretical foundation of policy studies, regardless of mobility track. The core courses/modules are in policy analysis; economics for public policy; global governance; and public management. Research methods and a research workshop also form a mandatory element to enhance students' research skills. The core courses/modules are divided between year one and year two consortium institutions.
- Track-specific core courses/modules are obligatory for students choosing to take a particular mobility track, and are the main instrument for differentiation within Mundus MAPP. The various combinations of consortium universities allow students to specialise in a) Political Economy and Development; b) Governance and Development; c) Global Public Policy and d) European Public Policy.
- A wide range of free elective courses/modules are available at each of the consortium institutions, allowing the students to take any subject they consider most useful for complementing their studies.

2) The spring school/study visit is a joint activity in spring of the first academic year, mandatory for all students regardless of mobility track. It serves course integration, allowing students and faculty from the consortium institutions to interact, and strengthens the students' grounding in contemporary policy practice. It involves a field trip to a relevant organisation (e.g. EU institutions, selected UN agencies, national ministries, parliaments, NGOs, think tanks). The location of the field trip changes from year to year depending on students' preferences and the availability of relevant institutions.

3) Internships take place in the period between the spring school/study visit and the beginning of the academic year in the second year institution, and are designed to provide hands-on experience in public policy research and analysis and to facilitate the students' (re)integration into the international job market upon graduation by building up networks and professional contacts at hosting organisations. Placements are facilitated and may take place in the institution of the students' choice, such as think tanks, international organisations, national and international NGOs, professional bodies, and government agencies and embassies.

4) Research and research training (representing approximately a quarter of the total of credit load) is a core component of Mundus MAPP. Students are provided with advanced research design and methodological skills through the research methods core course(s), research workshop, and the mentoring of significant research projects. Students start to work on their theses by compiling a review of the relevant literature, a methods section, or a substantial research proposal in the form of a "thesis report", to be submitted in the first academic year. Building on the thesis report, students continue their project in year two and submit a thesis at the end of the programme. Both the thesis report and the thesis are jointly supervised and jointly examined by the two institutions the student studies in on their chosen mobility track.

Mundus MAPP includes a strong practice component, represented by the internship, the spring school/study-trip and courses/modules taught with the participation of invited professionals. This is designed to allow students to observe the real world of policy-making, interact with practitioners, apply theoretical knowledge to practical policy problems, collect empirical (case study) material for research projects and theses, and build up professional contacts and networks that will facilitate their (re)integration into the job-market.

¹ The credit level is an indication of the module's relative intellectual demand, complexity and depth of learning and of learner autonomy. Most modules in postgraduate programmes will be at Level 7/Masters. Some modules are permitted to be at Level 6/Honours but must be marked on a pass/fail basis. See University Teaching Committee guidance for the limits on Level 6/Honours credit.

² The credit value gives the notional workload for the module, where 1 credit corresponds to a notional workload of 10 hours (including contact hours, private study and assessment)

³ Special assessment rules (requiring University Teaching Committee approval)

P/F – the module is marked on a pass/fail basis (NB pass/fail modules cannot be compensated)

NC – the module cannot be compensated

NR – there is no reassessment opportunity for this module. It must be passed at the first attempt

⁴ AuT – Autumn Term, SpT – Spring Term, SuT – Summer Term, SuVac – Summer vacation

⁵ Independent Study Modules (ISMs) are assessed by a dissertation or substantial project report. They cannot be compensated (NC) and are subject to reassessment rules which differ from 'taught modules'. Masters programmes should include an ISM(s) of between 60 and 100 credits. This is usually one module but may be more.

Quality and Standards
Mundus MAPP has a complex internal evaluation process that relies on both a joint process at consortium level and the partner institutions' own evaluations processes. At programme level, Mundus MAPP students are surveyed twice during their studies by the consortium; the surveys are online; pose both multiple choice and open ended questions; and cover both the academic and the administrative aspects of the programme to great detail. The surveys are supplemented with multiple possibilities for oral feedback presentations. Mundus MAPP students elect a representative at each of the four partner institutions; the student representatives attend Mundus MAPP Academic Board meetings and present reports with comments and issues raised by the student body. The Mundus MAPP spring school/study visit will also include programme evaluation/feedback sessions with the participation of the students and academic/administrative staff from all consortium institutions. Feedback sessions also take place with student representatives in the consortium institutions. The Mundus MAPP consortium plans to run regular alumni surveys. Feedback from students, alumni and scholars is taken very seriously by the consortium. The Mundus MAPP Academic Board regularly reviews the survey results and meets with the student representatives to allow for informal exchange, and then responds to any criticism or issues raised by making changes in the curriculum or administrative arrangements. Student evaluations, scholar feedback and an external evaluation of the programme have been the main source for the changes the consortium has introduced. The consortium's approach to quality assurance, as above, is supplemented by the partners' own internal quality assurance procedures. All the partner institutions have rigorous procedures for new programme approval, student evaluation of modules and programmes, and programme monitoring and review, overseen by an established quality assurance committee(s). Information pertaining to Mundus MAPP, including feedback from students, obtained from these complementary quality assurance procedures is fed by the partners to the Mundus MAPP Academic Board for discussion and action where necessary.
