

Professor John Robinson

Pro-Vice-Chancellor for Teaching, Learning and Students at the University of York

Biography: John Robinson is an electronics engineer with research and design contributions in image processing. He became PVC in 2012 after four years as Head of Department of Electronics at York where he has been a professor since 2000. Before that he held an Industrial Research Chair at Memorial University of Newfoundland, founding a spinout company, and previously worked for the University of Waterloo and Bell-Northern Research.

He has a BSc in Maths from Durham, MSc and PhD in Engineering from Essex, and an MPhil in the Humanities from Memorial.