

Bernadine - University of British Columbia, Canada
(2017/18)

This experience allowed me to grow in ways I could not otherwise have. I have learnt how to travel and live abroad, how to live so far away from friends and family, and how to make new connections and be resourceful outside of my familiar area. I have a clearer view of the world and of other countries, am more aware of other cultures and how it feels to be a guest in a new place.

I loved studying my new subjects with my Canadian professors, and learning new things with my classmates and friends. For students considering study abroad, I would tell them that this is a unique experience which will leave them with memories, abilities, knowledge, friends and connections to keep far into the future.
