MRAO Casual Workers Privacy Notice

This privacy notice is for current University of York and Hull York Medical School (HYMS) students who apply to undertake casual employment with the MRAO teams at the University of York and (HYMS) and our partners.

It sets out the ways in which the University of York gathers, uses, stores and shares your data. It also sets out how long we keep your data and what rights you have in relation to your data under the UK General Data Protection Regulation (GDPR) and Data Protection Act 2018.

For the purposes of this privacy notice, University of York is the Data Controller as defined in the UK GDPR. We are registered with the Information Commissioner’s Office and our entry can be found here. Our registration number is: Z4855807.

Where do we get your data from?

The organisation collects information about you in a variety of ways. These include:

- information collected through application forms;
- information collected through any correspondence with you during the application process;
- through interviews, meetings or other assessments;
- from information provided to us by third parties, such as referees and Disclosure and Barring Service (DBS).

What data do we have?

Personal data including:

- your name, address, date of birth and contact details, including email address and mobile telephone number and any background information you have provided to us for example, involvement in WP programmes and any WP criteria you may meet;
- details of your current and past qualifications, educational establishments, skills, suitability to work with young people, experience and employment history, including start and end dates, with previous employers and with the organisation;
- information about your entitlement to work in the UK;
- your Disclosure and Barring Service (DBS) clearance number and details of your certificate and clearance, for the purpose of making criminal record checks.

Special category data including information about disability, health, ethnicity and racial origin.

What is our legal basis for processing your data?

The University needs to process personal data during the recruitment process and keep records of that process. Processing data from job applicants allows the organisation to manage the recruitment process, assess and confirm a candidate’s suitability for employment and decide to whom to offer a job. The organisation may also need to process data from job applicants to respond to and defend against legal claims.

Typically, data will be processed:

- on the grounds of contractual requirement or to take steps to enter into a contract with you e.g. to offer you employment at the University;
- because it is necessary for the performance of a task carried out in the public interest (for information on our public task see our function as set out in our charter) e.g. in order to contact you prior to, and during, any shift on which you work;
- because it is necessary for our or a third party’s legitimate interests;
- to allow us to comply with our legal obligations;
- to protect your or another person’s vital interests;
- to monitor equality and diversity;
- because you have given us your consent or, in the case of special category data, your explicit consent.

How do we use your data?

The University may process your personal data for the following purposes:

- to operate recruitment and selection processes;
- to form the basis of a personnel file, should you be offered employment at the University;
- to enable effective communication with you as a job applicant;
- to check, where necessary, that applicants are eligible to work with children;
- to ensure effective general HR and business administration, including the analysis of applicant numbers and trends to improve our administrative processes;
- to maintain and promote equality in the workplace;
- to respond to and defend against legal claims;
- to provide evidence that the University has met the UK government’s resident labour market test;
- to meet the audit requirements of some of the University’s funding providers;
- to maintain the safety and security of the campus for all users. This may include the use of CCTV for crime prevention and detection purposes.
- to monitor equal opportunities
- to compile statistical returns which the University may be required to publish or pass to government bodies or the Higher Educational Statistical Agency (HESA)
- to compile anonymised statistics related to widening participation characteristics in order to measure progress against targets in the University of York Access and Participation Plan

In addition, please note that while on campus you may be captured in photographs or video footage as part of a wider group shot. These images/recordings may be used by the University for promotional purposes e.g. in the development of the University’s prospectus. If you have any concerns about the use of your image please contact the University’s Data Protection Officer for more information, dataprotection@york.ac.uk.

Who do we share your data with?

The University may share your data with:

- employees and agents of the University, for the purpose of assessing your application;

Last updated 26/01/21
• if requested, previous employers, individual referees and external peers, to obtain references;
• third parties that process data on behalf of the University to support it in fulfilling its obligations and responsibilities to and relationship with you (e.g. software and system providers);
• other HE institutions or third parties (such as funding bodies) involved in the job advertised;
• University of York departments and other HE institutions for which you are working an event, to enable them to contact you in relation to that shift;
• the Disclosure and Barring Service, for the purpose of making criminal record checks;
• Schools at which you are attending off site events/shifts; on such occasions we will only share your name and degree title and your DBS number (if requested by the school);
• Third party organisations including UniBuddy and Brightside where student ambassadors have specifically been recruited to work on programmes delivered by these organisations.

How do we keep your data secure?

The University takes information security extremely seriously and has implemented appropriate technical and organisational measures to protect personal data and special category data. Access to information is restricted on a need-to-know basis and security arrangements are regularly reviewed to ensure their continued suitability. For further information please see, https://www.york.ac.uk/it-services/security/.

How long will we keep your data?

The University will retain your data in line with legal requirements or where there is a business need. Retention timeframes will be determined in line with the University’s Records Retention Schedule.

When we pass your contact details on to University departments and other HE Institutions for the purposes of contacting you in relation to a specific event or shift on which you are working, your contact details will be deleted by them as soon as the shift has been completed.

What rights do you have in relation to your data?

Under the UK GDPR , you have a right of access to your data, a right to rectification, erasure (in certain circumstances), restriction, objection or portability (in certain circumstances). You also have a right to withdraw consent. If you would like to exercise any of these rights, please contact us at admissions-ambassadors@york.ac.uk. For all other requests, see https://www.york.ac.uk/records-management/generaldataprotectionregulation/individualsrigh.ts/.

Questions or concerns

If you have any questions about this privacy notice or concerns about how your data is being processed, please contact the University’s Data Protection Officer at dataprotection@york.ac.uk.

Right to complain

If you are unhappy with the way in which the University has handled your personal data, you have a right to complain to the Information Commissioner’s Office. For information on reporting a concern to the Information Commissioner’s Office, please see www.ico.org.uk/concern
